By DON E. SELLZ
The statistics compiled by the state committee of the National Council of Safety, 95,500 lives were lost through accident in 1927. The first ten months of 1928 point out a trend that will pass the 100,000 mark this year. The increase of 1927 over 1926 is six per cent. In sixteen years, from 1911 to 1927, accidental destruction of life in the United States has increased twenty per cent. The automobile has become the chief offender. In the year noted it has multiplied its victims by one and one-half times, or 50 per cent. Railroads also dropped thirty per cent. The principal causes of death were, in the principal order, four per cent respectively, from falling out of every hundred killed were killed by automobiles. Accidents account for six per cent of all deaths in the United States, six deaths out of every hundred. In 1918 to 1927 the number of fatalities increased from 61,000 to 95,500, a colossal increase. The ratio of deaths to cars registered. In 1927, 100,000 cars were registered, and the ratio of about ten to 1,003. This was an increase of more than ten per cent in deaths against five per cent more cars registered. Deaths from automobiles are calculated with the same ratio as deaths from other causes are not included. And when added the automobile death toll for 1927 totals 25,800.

When to the number of automobiles used, the toll of their vast mortality is multiplied enormously, even so that if all the motors registered in the United States were put into one big room, the toll would be sixty thousand miles per hour, more than twice around the world. To this add the fact that they are used at night and that they are the trouble maker of the busy man, the pedestrian, of course, find the main supply of victims—about twenty per cent. Of these over one hundred or twenty-seven per cent are children under ten years of age—horrible as the figures cannot be kept out of the mind and the machine is merciless. The toll also is furnished by the fact that the injuries. The cities naturally pay the biggest part of the figure, but show an increase of seven and one-half per cent over 1926.

Nothing is so going to be done about it, so far as discernible at present. The passion for speed will not be met by stern regulations. As it is, the cities have no power to do anything. The government instead of convenience. In New York moves at an average rate but two and one-half miles per hour. The bulky cars crowd the sidewalks. Many times

Nor do the autos relieve the pressure on the subway and "L" lines to any extent—nothing comparable to the dangers they cause. To begin with, two or at the most three people use the subway in going to business. The huge volume of autos demands a space about five by 10

Curious as it may appear, the number of automobile fatalities is exceeded by accidents in the household. Burns, scaldings and gas suffocations provide most of the casualties. The death toll is nine per cent greater than the deaths from automobile accidents, home ought to be the safest of all.

The railroads have greatly lessened the hazard to employes and passengers, being less than one-half as many as formerly as in 1918. Crossing accidents, however, have grown. These made seventy-five per cent of railway killings in 1927. The usual toll continues to be taken from persons who persist in lag on the tracks.

Drownings account for about 12 per cent of the total.

partment of Commerce has just completed a report, also, on 1927 accidents showing a total of 164 deaths, sixty-five being pilots and ninety-nine passengers. Of the 200 planes involved in these accidents, 34 were licensed and unlicensed.

The latest accident total has risen at a rate per year that is twice as great as that of Americans killed in the World War with all its modern implements. Herein is study for humanity. Cautions are urged to take the Elmer Morrill is grading his lawn, painting his house, and recently built a new garage and made other improvements in and around his home and farm which is a very convenient and attractive place.

In comparison with the good old days, election night was quiet as a Quaker meeting. Radio played the leading role with the telephone and telegraph in the background. Home gatherings were everywhere and good sized crowds hung around the loud speakers at Ashton's Drug Store, the Clark Drug Co., the Norway Auto Co., Ray Dunham's, the radio dealer and other public places. Reception was good, and the enthusiastic ones held out until past midnight. The law office of Donald B. Artridge was Republican headquarters for the evening. Oxford county returns were tabulated along with the state and national results.

Woodbury Russell has started the carpenter work on his new bungalow at the lot adjoining his residence on Pearl Street. The building will be enclosed before real winter weather.

Lowell Cleveland is having sand and loam hauled to his premises for grading the yard before winter.

An auto party including Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford P. Lake enjoyed hunting last week near St. John's river and Lac Frontenac. They started Wednesday and returned Friday, covering 600 miles and securing two deer. The game was secured in or near the highway for no timber cutting was necessary.

Mrs. H. P. Hammond of Paris Hill called on friends in town Wednesday afternoon.

Oliver J. Foss has filled his door-yard to the depth of several inches expecting to avoid the drainage from the cement highway at that point. Spring floods have caused inconvenience and some damage from a generous gift of sand distributed over the grass plot.

NORWAY LAKE

Alfred Snow was in Auburn, Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood and family of Bridgton were at Virgil Flood's Sunday. Edith Wood returned home with her parents, Sunday night.

Guy Ingalls has been very ill the past few days with a severe cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Kilgore has gone to Massachussetts for the winter.

Beulah Bachelder celebrated her sixteenth birthday, Friday, November 2, and entertained twelve of her little friends. Hallows' eve decorations were effectively used and refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, fancy cookies and birthday cake were served. She received many pretty gifts.

Mrs. Leola Morrison and son, Robley, were in Rumford, Sunday evening. Robley attended a Y. P. C. U. meeting and Mrs. Morrison visited friends.

The school is preparing a Thanksgiving entertainment.

"Her Song"
Rehearsals for "Her Song" were called on Monday evening with the arrival in town of Miss Grayce Mackey, the company director.

"Her Song" is designed to make you laugh and at the same time touches your heart in the right place.

The characters have been well chosen from the South Paris High School who are sponsoring the show, and judging from the fine spirit and enthusiasm a splendid performance is assured. "Her Song" will be presented Friday evening, November 23rd, at 8 o'clock in the Association Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Eganman, (Marian Rand) are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Avis Faye, Wednesday, October 31.

Inspection of the work of Brown's W. R. C. was held Thursday, Nov. 8. Mrs. Redding of Sumner was in charge. A supper of salads, hot dishes, rolls, coffee and cake was served at six o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis and family spent the week end in Bethel, Wednesday, October 31.

A very bad accident occurred late Sunday afternoon near the Jewett place, between Bethel and Newry Corner when a Locomobile sedan with four men, overturned. James E. Kane of East Milton, Mass., the driver, admitted stealing the car in Hingham, Mass., Sunday morning. Kane and George Pierce, a former inmate in South Paris jail while the two other occupants are in Rumford Community Hospital, one in a very critical condition. The car proved to belong to a man named Kelley of Hingham, Mass., and Monday Kelley and a deputy sheriff from that town arrived in Bethel to investigate.

Austin Jodrey has traded for a Willys-Knight sedan.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Abbott and Mrs. Clara Abbott of Auburn spent Sunday as guests of P. A. Brown and family.

There will be a dance in the Orange Hall, Friday, November 16. A great time is anticipated, with Lord's Orchestra of four pieces in attendance.

A sewing club has been organized among the grammar school girls. Miss Eva Ladd is in charge.

Mrs. Charles Swan (Celestine Flint), who was operated on for appendicitis at St. Barnabas Hospital, last week, is said to be getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Imman, and Mrs. Mabel Beckler started for Florida by automobile, early Monday morning.

Reminiscences of Judge Walton

Charles E. Waterman of Mechanic Falls Tells of Incidents Regarding Judge Walton in Court

The reminiscences of Judge Whitman and Don Seitz, concerning Judge Charles W. Walton, brought up other incidents about that jurist in my mind.

It has been my fortune, good or otherwise, to report the doings of Oxford County courts for many years, and I can well remember more or less about most of the judges who have visited the county during the past half-century, including Judge Walton.

I never thought he was a great favorite with the Oxford Bar, or indeed, any other bar of the state. He had a way of injecting trivial matters into the cases, trivial mostly, and without connection. I remember one such case, which was heard along in the eighties, concerning a lot of poplar, (or popple) pelf wood grown and cut in the town of Roxbury. I have forgotten the facts of the controversy, but it was considered an important case. John P. Swasey, of Canton was on one side and John A. Morrill of Auburn, on the other. There were other lawyers connected with it.

As the case progressed, it became apparent that Morrill and his witnesses talked about the product in controversy as "poplar," while Swasey and his witnesses called the same thing "popple."

Morrill was addressing the court on a motion or something of the kind, which he wished to have incorporated into the records of the case and in which he called the wood in question, "poplar."

"Now, look here!" thundered the judge, "What are you fighting over—poplar or popple wood? You say it is 'poplar,' and Swasey says it is 'popple.' Now which is it?"

"I believe, your honor," replied Mr. Morrill, "that I am using the pronunciation of standard dictionaries."

"Mr. Swasey," continued the judge, addressing the other lawyer, "what are you fighting over?"

"Popple," replied that attorney, "I wasn't asked by my client to say anything else!"

Mr. Swasey's client was called up. "What kind of wood did you raise on your lot?" inquired the judge.

"Popple," replied the man. "I never heard of 'poplar,' before in my life."

"Living all your life in Roxbury and never heard of any poplar being grown there?"

"Never," replied the man.

"Now," continued the judge, addressing Mr. Morrill, "we are talking about 'popple' wood. They don't raise any other kind in Roxbury. I guess a man who has lived there all his life and raised it all his life ought to know more about the name than any dictionary!"

Davis Farm Buildings Destroyed

The Charles Davis, formerly the Allenbrook stand of buildings on the Hill road was destroyed by fire, Thursday morning, November 1st. The loss was estimated at about $30,000 with a small insurance.

The fire started around the chimney in the main part of the house. The fire spread quickly to the barn, built some years ago by Mr. Holbrook. This structure was 52 feet wide and 100 feet long, and in it were 120 tons of hay, 200 bushels of potatoes, 40 tons of ensilage in the silo besides farming tools and machinery. Its timbers were hand-hewn and massive.

Attempts to pull down the long shed connecting the house and barn were futile because of the solid construction of the frame. A garage and other small disconnected buildings were saved.

The buildings had been a land mark for many years. The farm was purchased by Matti Pulkkinen a few years since, who has kept the farm in a high state of production.

The place was near the Oxford Spring Sanitarium for the treatment of World War Veterans which burned about five years ago.

Oxford High School Notes

A gift of $100 from George R. Walker, Esq., a New York attorney, recently received, will be for the complete needs of the school, as the faculty may decide. Mr. Walker formerly attended the Oxford schools and retains his interest in the home-town institution.

The following officers have been elected for the coming year:

Oxford High School Student Association
Pres.—Gould Richmond
Vice Pres.—Edward Doughty
Secretary—Robert Greenleaf
Cheer Leaders—Theodore Daniels, Robert Dunn.
